PROBLEM: DUPLICATE DRUG THERAPY

A 48 year old patient with a history of chronic migraines, depression, and high cholesterol was targeted for the Pharmacy Advocate program. During the initial consult, the patient reported a history of severe migraines as evidenced by a frequency of 25-30 migraines per month. The patient had trialed numerous medications for migraine prevention without success, but reported that they had recently started Botox injections and these worked incredibly well. Their migraine frequency went from 25-30 per month to 5 per month. At the time of the consult with Tria, the patient continued to take their previous migraine prevention medications including Trokendi XR.

IMPROVED HEALTH OUTCOMES

Tria Health recommended the patient quit taking Trokendi XR since the patient had not seen success with and were achieving good results with Botox injections. The patients physician agreed with this recommendation saving the plan and the patient money.
