PROBLEM: ADVERSE DRUG REACTION

A 46-year old patient with depression, GERD, hypothyroidism and allergies had an initial consultation with Tria Health. The patient reported recently starting on brand name Fetzima for depression. She was experiencing fatigue and persistent headaches since starting this medication. In addition to side effects, Fetzima is an expensive brand, so Tria Health recommended switching to generic Duloxetine. Upon follow-up, the patient was taking Duloxetine and stated they were tolerating it without side effects and their depression symptoms were well controlled.

IMPROVED HEALTH OUTCOMES

The new medication was having bad side effects, so a different medication was recommended and approved by the physician. Cost savings was an additional bonus!
